

Example from a Self-Guided Tour

LOCATION #15: NEWS BOARD

Every week we do News Board. The teacher tells the chairpersons [of the clans] to go up to the board and write some news. They can write any news that they want. After everybody is done, they read it to the class one at a time. I would read what I wrote and the teacher would ask me what I thought I could fix up. If I didn't think anything was wrong, the other kids could help me fix up spelling or punctuation. And if you have everything right, you get a Star News Board. When you get a Star News Board you become a news editor for the class news and you get a certificate.

Originally published by the National Council of Teachers of English in Kathy Egawa's "Writing for Multiple Purposes: How Our Class Works" from the April 2000 School Talk (5.3), pages 3-4.