

Scan this paragraph from “Creature Feature” in Kids Discover DOGS (Volume 10, Issue 7, August 2000) to locate answers to the questions.

“Dogs see the world differently from humans. They see shades of blue, purple, and yellow, like some color-blind people do. Dogs have more trouble picking out details and do not see color as clearly. But watch out if something moves. A dog’s eyes are designed to spot prey. A dog can catch even the slightest movement from the corner of its eye – and often in dimmer light than a human can.”

1. For what are a dog’s eyes designed?
2. What colors does a dog see?
3. Can a dog or a human pick out details more clearly?
