

What Mark of Punctuation Are You?

Which description best fits your personality and attitude? As well, try to guess which descriptions match these marks of punctuation: semicolon, comma, colon, exclamation mark.

- You are a bundle of... well, something. You're often a bundle of joy, passion, or drama. You're loud, brash, and outgoing. If you think it, you say it. Definitely not the quiet type, you really don't keep a lot to yourself. You're lively and inspiring. People love to be around your energy. (But they do secretly worry that you'll spill their secrets without even realizing it.) You excel in public speaking. You get along best with the Dash. You are a _____.
- You are open-minded and extremely optimistic. You enjoy almost all facets of life. You can find the good in almost anything. You keep yourself busy with tons of friends, activities, and interests. You find it hard to turn down an opportunity, even if you are pressed for time. Your friends find you fascinating, charming, and easy to talk to. (But with so many competing interests, your friends do feel like you hardly have time for them.) You excel in inspiring people. You get along best with the Question Mark. You are a _____.
- You are elegant, understated, and subtle in your communication. You're very smart (and you know it), but you don't often showcase your brilliance. Instead, you carefully construct your arguments, ideas, and theories – until they are bulletproof. You see your words as an expression of yourself, and you are careful not to waste them. Your friends see you as enlightened, logical, and shrewd. (But what you're saying often goes right over their heads.) You excel in the Arts. You get along best with the Colon. You are a _____.
- You are very orderly and fact driven. You aren't concerned much with theories or dreams... only what's true or untrue. You are brilliant and incredibly learned. Anything you know is well researched. You like to make lists and sort through things step by step. You aren't subject to whim or emotions. Your friends see you as a constant source of knowledge and advice. (But they are a little sick of you being right all of the time!) You excel in leadership positions. You get along best with the Semicolon. You are a _____.

Descriptions were accessed from the web site "What Mark of Punctuation Are You?" (<http://www.blogthings.com/whatpunctuationmarkareyouquiz/>)