A Quote/Greeting

Never lend books, for no one ever returns them; the only books I have in my library are books that other folks have left me.

~ Anatole France ~

About Me

I learned to read from my mom and grandma, who used to read to me when I was little, and Mrs. Jackson, my first grade teacher.

When I read, I like to picture what's happening in the story. That makes it easier to understand and follow what's happening.

I sometimes like to read for school if the story is good or if the assignment isn't boring. I read to learn more about subjects I like.

On the Internet, I like to read articles and sites about people I'd like to learn more about or music I'm interested in.

My Latest Blog Entry

Right now I'm reading a book called Stargirl in my Language Arts class. I like it because it's funny and Leo, the guy telling the story, seems like a real person. The author gives just enough description and details that I can always picture what's happening, but there's not so much I get bored.

Right now, he's deciding whether he can still be friends with Stargirl. I'm reading to find out what he will decide to do.

My Interests and Favorites

My favorite book is called A Child Called It. I have read it probably three or four times. My favorite magazine is Sports Illustrated, but I also read ESPN online.

My favorite things to read are things that are interesting to me or that have information I can use in them. I like to find out things to share with my friends.
