

Blogging Instructions

1. Type in the address of the blog in the address bar.

Write down the address of your class blog here: _____

2. The design of each blog will be different. Below are samples of a blog page. The location of the student identifiers (it may be your first name, a number, or your initials) is in the second column. The location of your ID (it may be your first name, a number, or your initials) might be different on your blog.

3. After you click on your identifier, you will see this page.

DO NOT FILL IN YOUR FULL NAME
DO NOT FILL IN YOUR E-MAIL ADDRESS
DO NOT FILL IN THE WEBSITE

Just use your identifier, unscramble the mystery word, and post your analysis.

To post your analysis, just cut and paste from your original Word document. Please note: photos, maps, or anything other than text will not post.

continued

Blogging Instructions (continued)

This screenshot shows a web browser window with a comment form. The form includes fields for 'Your comment', 'Name', 'E-mail', and 'Website'. A 'Submit' button is at the bottom. A large text area is intended for pasting content. Callouts provide instructions: 'Type in your ID only. This will identify who has made the comment' points to the 'Name' field; 'DO NOT fill in your full name DO NOT fill in your e-mail address' points to the 'E-mail' field; 'Unscramble the mystery word!' points to the 'Website' field which contains the word 'school'; and 'Cut and paste your Word document here' points to the large text area.

Type in your ID only. This will identify who has made the comment

DO NOT fill in your full name
DO NOT fill in your e-mail address

Unscramble the mystery word!

Cut and paste your Word document here

This screenshot shows a web browser window displaying a blog page. The page features a grid of blog posts. Callouts provide instructions: 'REFRESH button: click this to update your screen (especially after posting)' points to the refresh icon in the browser toolbar; 'Your post will appear here' points to a large text area in a post; and 'Watch these two areas for new posts' points to the 'Recent Comments' and 'Recent Posts' sections.

REFRESH button: click this to update your screen (especially after posting)

Your post will appear here

Watch these two areas for new posts