

Role-Play A

You are someone who works long days in an office with several other people. Your job asks you to do repetitive things over and over again. Often you will take long lunches with friends so you have a chance to relax from the stresses of your job. Sometimes you come back late and a little silly from all that laughter but you're certain this doesn't affect your work.

Your desk is next to Role B's. Role B spends a great deal of time adjusting the desk to be just right. Sometimes this drives you crazy but today you're just back from a delicious and very long lunch. You're in a great mood so you try to help Role B with the desk. As the character of Role A, role-play the conversation and interaction between you and B.