

Role-Play B

You are someone who works long days in an office with several other people. Your job asks you to do repetitive things over and over again. This is hard because you have a desk that you can never get to be the right height—sometimes it's too high, sometimes it's too low. You often spend a lot of time during the day trying to fix your desk.

Your desk is next to Role A, who takes long lunches. You've noticed that the longer the lunch, the more silly and sloppy Role A will be. Today Role A has taken a very long lunch and now wants to help you fix your desk. As the character of Role B, role-play your response and the conversation to Role A's attempts to help.