|   | Prediction Statements  | True or False              | Chapter Title | Revisions of True or False | Revisions of Chapter Title |
| 1 | Each enlisted man was issued a full-size tent as his living quarters.   |                            |               |                            |                            |
| 2 | Because mail was uncensored , soldiers' letters to their families mentioned information about the number, location, and planned movement of troops. |                            |               |                            |                            |
| 3 | Soldiers treasured photographs of their wives and children.   |                            |               |                            |                            |
| 4 | Few games played by Civil War soldiers are still popular today.   |                            |               |                            |                            |
| 5 | Federal and Confederate soldiers were not concerned about having food, clothing, and shelter because the government provided them.                  |                            |               |                            |                            |
| 6 | Drums and bugles were used to give commands to troops during a battle.  |                            |               |                            |                            |
