

Student Reflection Sheet

Students can assess their own work and learning by completing a reflection sheet that is handed in with the story. As with all reflection sheets, this should include 4-5 questions that make the reader really think about his/her piece and the process that led to its creation.

Suggested questions include:

- What do you think is the strongest line in the story? Why?
- What do you think will most please person the story is written about? Why?
- What part of the story are you still dissatisfied with? Why?
- What did you struggle with most in creating this story?
- Where could you include some more specific detail?
- What was the best piece of advice you got from your response group?
- Talk about yourself as a “journalist.” Is this a kind of writing you like or dislike? Why? What did you think about the interview process?
