Name_____   Date_____

New Narrator Point of View for A Comic Rubric

Category	4 - Excellent	3 - Proficient	2 - Developing	1 - Needs Improvement
Character Trait	Clearly and consistently shows a strong character trait through thoughts, dialogue, and actions. Trait is well-developed and enhances the story.	Character trait is present and mostly clear through thoughts, dialogue, or actions.	Trait is somewhat shown but needs more development or consistency.	Character trait is unclear or missing. Little to no evidence of trait in character behavior.
Perspective / Point of View	Unique and consistent point of view is shown. Character's thoughts and feelings are clear and help tell the story.	Point of view is clear and mostly consistent. Shows some understanding of the character's mindset.	Perspective is sometimes unclear or shifts. Limited insight into the character's thoughts or feelings.	Perspective is confusing or missing. No clear understanding of character's point of view.
Inferences / Depth of Thinking	Comic invites readers to make thoughtful inferences. Shows deeper understanding of character motivations or events.	Some opportunities for inference. Shows basic understanding of motivations or events.	Few opportunities for inference. Shows surface-level understanding.	Lacks depth. Events and characters are explained without room for interpretation.

Illustrations / Visual Support	Illustrations strongly support the story and clearly show character emotions, actions, and setting. Creative and detailed.	Illustrations support the story. Emotions and actions are mostly clear.	Some illustrations are unclear or incomplete. Limited support for story events.	Illustrations do not support the story or are missing. Little to no visual connection to the narrative.

Total Score: _____ / 16

Comments / Feedback:

- Strengths:

- Revisions to consider: